The chassis was based on the Dino 246 but was stretched to make space for a 2+2 configuration and the 3-litre V8 was integrally joined with the gearbox and featured an alloy block and heads with dual overhead camshafts fed through four Weber 40 DCNF carburettors. The styling was controversial at the time, with some journalists comparing it to the Bertone-designed Lancia Stratos and Lamborghini Urraco and the proportions gave traditionalists an attack of the vapours but, as is often the way, Bertone's styling effort probably looks better now than it ever has. First seen at the Frankfurt Show in September 1975, the GTi came with a 1.6-litre, fuel-injected, 110bhp engine which, in a car weighing a mere 1,861lbs made for a performance package of a type not seen since the demise of the Mini Cooper 1275S. At the time 'Group B' regulations required manufacturers to assemble 200 road-going versions of their race-bred competition cars, however with the passing of time, it's become clear that Ford did not manage to sell 200, with Justin Smith, the Ford RS200 authority, believing as few as 147 were actually sold. Presented here is certainly one of the best examples of the Ford RS200 we have offered for sale and with an exceptionally low mileage of 1,798. It looks particularly striking in Black Metallic, apt for such a purposeful Black Series car, has covered 24,600 miles from new and benefits from a comprehensive service history, the most recent carried out at Sytner Mercedes-Benz of Bath in November 2024.On offer from a private Collection of special cars, it has been used sparingly but always meticulously stored and serviced. Boasting a 5.2-litre V10 engine, semi-automatic transmission and all-wheel drive, this thrilling open-top Lamborghini produces 610bhp for 0-62mph in 3.2 seconds, and a 201mph top speed. The car runs on the original size Pirelli tyres, wrapped around an €8,000 set of Borrani wheels. The £4,000 stainless steel exhaust features a resonator box and sounds not dissimilar to a V12 on carburettors. It pulls down to reveal the air conditioning controls hidden behind. weitere 80 Blätter (76 + 4 Anzeigen) mit Informationen von Künstlern der aktuellen Ausstellung. [9]. You must satisfy your knowledge as to a vehicles description and carpets present beautifully and the refurbished Cromodora alloys are as you would expect from a quality recommission. An original three-door example of the Mk2 Ford Focus ST, it uses a 2.5-litre five-cylinder turbo engine, which produces 225hp. That and a set of 19" alloys weighing just 11kg each - 3kg lighter than those of the standard CLK63. Inside, the differences are also obvious, with carbon fibre-reinforced trim on the door inserts and centre console, a forged aluminium gear selector, a flat-bottomed wheel, expensive bucket seats and AMG also replaces the rear bench with two trimmed wells. The CLK Black Series utilises AMG's mighty (and largely hand-built) M156 V8, the brand's first entirely self-built engine launched in 2005 and undoubtedly one of the greatest production car V8s ever built. Also included is a file of invoices, the correct aluminium-bound owner's pack, a new MoT test certificate valid until July 2025, a clear HPI, full Tracker system fitted and even an unused Aston Martin umbrella clipped to the boot lid. The beautifully appointed cabin complements this livery perfectly with its ample magnolia hides and accompanying cloths and carpets in similar tones. With just over 60,000 miles and very sensibly guided, this 'poster perfect' 911 Turbo is worthy of your close inspection. Under Ford ownership the sporting flagship was significantly revised to prolong its growing popularity. One of the fastest production cars available at the time, the Porsche 930 Turbo was revered for its performance and reliability during the 1970s and by the 1980s it became one of the defining cars of the decade. As well as being V8 powered, the car is taken to other extremes with its very rare supercharging, and long-wheelbase and luxurious specification. [W] Timed Auction No Image 2019 Benelli 500 Leoncino Registration Number: HG19 XLJ Frame Number: TBA - Exceptional example, excellent value - Under 2,000 miles The Benelli Leoncino 500 is a modern classic naked scrambler that blends Italian heritage with modern performance. Has had a refresh full respray. As we know, cars like these, produced in short runs with bespoke large capacity and naturally-aspirated engines are less likely to be offered by manufacturers in the future and are destined to become even more collectable. The last word should really come from Jeremy Clarkson, a former owner of a CLK63 Black Series - 'For sheer excitement, the CLK Black is a match for absolutely anything. The flat-six powertrain mated to a 4speed manual transmission and boosted by a turbocharger complemented by the intercooler offered 300bhp and 304ft/lbs of torque.Performance was amazing for the era and the Turbo 3.3 can still keep up with modern sports cars when accelerating from a standstill, requiring 5.4 seconds for 0-60mph and a quarter-mile time of 14 seconds flat with a top speed of 160mph. The car benefits from a very recent MOT (February 2026 expiration) with no advisories as per the last 3 since 2022. Upgrades to the power unit include the adoption of a larger magnesium dual-intake manifold with two internal butterfly valves, a reworked, less restrictive exhaust system and remapped electronics resulting in a sound track that is rather addictive, described as a subdued rumble gradually building into a deep roar before erupting into an all-guns-blazing blare. Power is channelled through Mercedes' SpeedShift 7G-Tronic gearbox (with Sport and Manual modes) but fettled by AMG for more efficient changes. These included a new 4-litre, six cylinder engine, bigger and black tinted rear lights and some tinkering with the rear window surrounds to make them look bigger and the controversial "flying buttresses" smaller. Expected wear. The engine is mated to a five-speed Renault UN1 gearbox which works well. Having tan leather unholstered cushion, size BX175. It comes with a hard-top roof. The FN2 Civic Type R arrived in the UK in 2007, gone was the previous car's floating dashboard with high-mounted gearshift; a wide, expansive dash now took its place, with a raised centre console, clusters of switches grouped close to the steering wheel and a split-level instrument cluster placing the speedometer just below the bottom of the windscreen. Sofa approx 152cm x 100cm x 90cm, chairs approx 88cm x 100cm x 90cm, ottoman approx 57cm square x 33cm. This is an opportunity not to be missed, as trying to find such a rare and revered car in right-hand drive, with such low mileage and diligent single ownership, is close to impossible. Arguably, the CLK63 AMG Black Series offers better value for money than other comparable limited edition Mercedes supercars of this era. Whilst Ford's competitors developed their rally cars from suitable models in their road car range, Lancia with their S4 Integrale, Audi with the S1 Quattro and Peugeot with their T16 205, Ford took a more extreme route, building a competitive rally car and then using it as the basis for a well-engineered, road-legal version, purely to tick the homologation boxes. Produced by Filippo Sapino of Ghia Design Studio and enclosed a mid-mounted engine, four-wheel drive and a frontmounted gearbox for ideal 50/50 weight distribution. New instruments are the main facelifted items to be found inside the cabin. Wood facia interior. With its diminutive size, extraordinary agility and powerful V6, the Stratos quickly established itself as a dominant force in rallying, winning the WRC three years in a row (1974-1976) and firmly established itself as a legend by continuing to win in private hands as late as 1981. This 1975 Lancia Stratos, Chassis #AR0001951, built to 'Group 4' specification, is offered fresh to market after a protracted build period with recent completion after what has been a seven year 'labour of love' by the present Lancia aficionado owner. There is a lot of expenditure on the car from 2003 to 2018 amounting to £18,850 and upon purchasing the car in September 2018, the current owner had Walkers Garage carry out a full assessment of their recommendations he spent a further £16,162 with works amounting to 189 ¼ hours in total, including a full engine rebuild plus many other new components. however I know there is a market for such items so I want to get a fair deal for them. $449.99 (Save over ... This black on black livery lends 'V16 ROR' a stealthy and imposing road presence. It has been lowered on Eibach springs, and fitted with uprated White Line anti-roll bars. However, as an historic vehicle, it is now MoT-exempt. Has two keys. It has had just three registered owners from new, the last since 2008 who appears to have used it only occasionally but always undertaking annual servicing. Power is up from the 478bhp of the standard CLK63 AMG to 507bhp at 6,800rpm, offering an impressive power-to-weight ratio of just over 300bhp per tonne whilst torque remains the same with 464lb/ft at 5,250rpm. For all this, the car was a huge success, being bigger and more usable than any other mid-engine car had managed or would manage for a while. It's supplied with Ford Motorsport decals and a leather interior which makes it a rare specification. It is being offered with a comprehensive main dealer service record up to 2016 along with the book pack, 2 keys and a V5C. Finished in dark metallic blue with full cream leather interior. It was sold new on 14th April 1989 by Charles King Motors, the Ford Main Dealer in Bedford, and apparently was the 100th car finished, bearing the chassis no. It should also be noted that so fresh is the build that a period of running in is still required. Heated electric front seats.
