But today, it's very simple. However, with new technologies new questions come. This section will answer some of your questions. How does anyone know if I lock their number? Of course, there is no flashing warning to let anyone call you block them. In most cases, when the blocked user calls your number, they will receive a message that informs you that the number you called is not receiving calls. Eventually, your phone number will behave as if it was disconnected. The only way a caller will know for certain that you blocked him is if they call you from another number. Can I block a whole prefix? Unfortunately, no. Blocking an entire area code is a very required feature that both carriers and manufacturers and have not yet created. Most of the time, your spam calls are coming from the same area code you use anyway. It is an attempt by scammers to seem more legitimate. But some calls come from random prefixes. While it would be useful to block an entire area code, it is not yet possible. Although, it's a good idea to keep an eye on Apple's Google Play Store and App Store for reliable applications that can help block these spam calls. Can a blocked call leave me a message on the voicemail? Yes, but you won't receive a notification. When you follow the methods listed above, you are essentially blocking notifications in a way. This means that the caller will not be able to contact you and your phone will not recognize that he has tried to contact you. The caller will have the opportunity to leave a voice message, but you won't know if you don't check the voicemail apof your phone. How do I know if I've been called by a confidential number? Sometimes we block phone numbers, but we wonder if the caller has tried to contact us. If it's you, that's really just a way to figure out if the user called you and if they leave you a As mentioned above, you will not be informed about the voicemail from the caller so you will need to check the voice of the phone app. If I block a phone number from calling, do I still get text messages? At least, not in the native text messaging application of your phone. The other user can still send messages on other platforms like WhatsApp, social media, etc. If you want the other person's texts, you will need to unlock them completely. Use the full features of your smartphone Most users do not know the full power of their smartphone devices. Since we are practically carrying small computers in our pockets, it is better to learn how to use all the features at our disposal. This article has shown you how to control the calls you want to receive. There is much more to explore and use, so don't stop here. There are many good reasons to block a phone number or contact on your iPhone. Maybe you're checking every call you receive and blocking spam calls while entering. Maybe you don't want friends to jump on your screen while you're at work. Or maybe you don't want some ex to contact you anymore. The good news is that blocking a contact only takes a few seconds. The best news is that blocking a number is not permanent, so if you change your mind, you can cancel the block. In fact, unlocking a number is even easier than blocking it first. Before we get to this, however, we make sure we are on the same page as what block calls actually. What happens when you block a number on iPhone An iPhone blocked number cannot call you. And they can't even send you FaceTime. But it doesn't mean the caller has no way to get in touch, because they can still leave a phone call. In fact, when a blocked number calls you, your phone immediately sends it to the voicemail, but your iPhone will not send you a notice that you have a new voicemail. Rather, the voicemail of the blocked caller will remain in your mailbox until you enter and delete it. How to unlock a number or contact on iPhoneFirst, you must consider whether you are unlocking a number that is in contacts, or simply in the list of recent calls. That's how to do both. Unlock a number in your contacts1. Open the green-and-white phone app on the screen and switch to the "Contact" tab.2. Find the particular contact you are looking for and open it.3. Scroll down to find the words "Unlock this Caller" in blue, and touch those words. Tap "Unlock this Caller." Steven John/Business Insider Unlock a number in your recent call list If you have blocked a recent caller who is not in your contacts and now regret that(maybe you want the dental insurance plan suddenly,) here's what to do.1. find the number below the recents tab of your app phone. 2. touch the blue correspondent i in the blue circle on the extreme right of that number. touch the next to the number you want to unlock. unlock.John/Business Insider 3. The content remains impartial and authentic. Sometimes, blocking unwanted calls from telemarketing companies, unknown numbers, and some people in your contacts could bring peace of mind. But if I accidentally block a friend in the process? Or, you want to unlock someone but don't remember how it is done? This tutorial will guide you through the process of unlocking a number on iOS and Android devices. Note: Steps in this tutorial may vary according to the device model (mainly for Android) and its operating system version. We used a Nokia smartphone running Android 10 OS (with UI stock) and an iPhone with iOS 14.7.1 installed. Android devices (from Samsung, OnePlus, etc) running Custom Android UI can have different steps to unlock contacts. If none of the methods below applies to the device, go to the manufacturer's website for clear cutting instructions. Unlock a number on iPhone If you remember the contacts you blocked, you can easily unlock them from the Phone app. But if you can't remember contacts, check the list of numbers blocked in the Phone Settings menu and unlock them accordingly. In this section, we will show you different techniques to unlock contacts on your iPhone and iPad. 1. Unlock a contact from the phone app Start the phone app, tap the information icon next to the number you want to unlock and tap Unlock this Caller. If the contact is not in the "Recentres" section, go to the Contact tab, select the contact you want to unlock (use the search bar to locate the fastest contact) and select Unlock this Caller. 2. Unlock contacts from the Settings menu This is the best approach to follow if you want to have a quick view of all blocked contacts on your iPhone. Open the Settings app, select Telephone and select Blocked Contacts. Tap Edit in the upper right corner. Tap the less left icon of the contact you want to unlock and select Unlock. This unlock the number(s) and remove it from the blocked contact list. Touch Done to save change. Addendum: Unmute Unknown Callers iOS and iPadOS ship with a function that automatically deviates calls from unknown/unsaved numbers to secretariat. Think of this as a "soft block". If you do not receive calls from numbers you have not blocked, the "Silence Unknown Caller" feature is probably active. Go to Settings > Phone > Silence Unknown Callers and toggleSilence Unknown Callers. Unlock a number on Android If you have blocked a number on your Android device and want to restore the action, there are several ways to do so. 1. Unlock a number from the call log A Athe number or contact in the phone's call log will have a cross-view image, i.e. a circle with a line through it. To unlock the contact/number, tap it, select the Unlock icon, and tap Unlock the confirmation prompt again. Alternatively, tap the image of the three-point display, tap the three-point menu icon, and select Unlock Numbers. 2. Unlock the number/contact from the Phone Settings menu If the locked contact is not in the call log, go to the Dial Settings menu to unlock the number. Launch the Phone app, tap the three-point menu icon in the upper-right corner, and select Settings. Tap the x icon next to the number you want to unlock and select Unlock on the prompt. You should also disable the "Block Call from Unidentified Calluses" option. This will automatically unblock calls from numbers that are not in your contact list. 3. Unlock the number/contact from the Google Contacts app If the native dialer app on your Android device doesn't have a menu for viewing blocked contacts, you can unlock the numbers from the Contacts app. Start Contacts, tap the hamburger menu icon in the top left corner, and select Settings. Go to the "Manage Contacts" section and select the blocked numbers. Tap the x icon next to the locked number and select Unlock on the prompt. 4. Unblock the number/contact from the Messages app When you report an SMS or MMS as spam, Android adds the number to the list of blocked contacts. Here's how to check blocked numbers using the default Messages app and how to unblock them: Open the Messages app, tap the three-point menu icon, and select Spam and blocked. Select the conversation from the number/contacts you want to unlock and select Unlock on the next page. Unblock contacts using third-party apps If you've blocked a contact using a third-party caller app ID, you may not receive calls or messages from the person, even if the number is not in your device's blocked contact list. Check the contact details on the app, or open the list of blocked numbers in the app's settings menu and unlock the number. Better yet, make the app of the system phone you sent with your device the default app for phone calls. Go to Settings > Apps and Notifications > Default apps > Phone apps and select the default Android phone app for system. Locking and unlocking numbers as needed It is important to state that locking and unlocking numbers are device-specific actions. Changing your SIM card to another device is a simple and indirect way to unlock a number. Restoring your iPhone or Android smartphone to factory default will also delete your contact list and unlock all numbers. Although this is extreme, because you lose files and settings, it is a valid method to unlock contacts, and we are putting out there for educational purposes.
